

LANDSCAPE FOUNDATION
STUDENTS' COMPETITION 2022

11TH
YEAR

Nurturing Childhood With Nature

The competition encourages students to imagine experiential and exciting outdoor environments for children for different age groups where they can observe and learn about the mysteries and wonders of the natural world. These new opportunities of observation, exploration and play allow a deeper and immersive engagement with nature. Thoughtful and imaginative graphic representation of these ideas in the form of paintings, sketches, drawings and poems are encouraged.

Theme

Living in natural environments helps immensely in the physical and mental well being of children. The experiential encounters with nature contribute to the intellectual, physical, emotional and social health of the young minds in a big way. Direct experience of nature – rolling in mud, walking in the woods, climbing trees, bathing in a pond, treading the hill, touching a fruit on the branch, running after butterflies – all are part of an exhilarating experience for children across all age groups.

The present context of cities leaves no opportunities for children to know, explore, engage or appreciate the natural world around. Children's living environments in cities have become a complex mosaic of controlled spaces without any deep relationship with nature. Their recreational activities are now confined to the comforts of homes and artificially conditioned environments, which are safe, secure and regimented. In contrast, the connection with nature exists in daily lives of children in rural contexts – courtyards, ponds, wells, fields, forests, orchards, tree groves, farms, maidan, streams and rivers are few sites where they encounter nature in its glory. They still have the freedom to play, explore and interact with the natural world with little or no restriction or supervision in these sites.

The competition encourages students to imagine experiential and exciting outdoor environments for children for different age groups where they can observe and learn about the mysteries and wonders of the natural world. These new opportunities of observation, exploration and play allow a deeper and immersive engagement with nature. Thoughtful and imaginative graphic representation of these ideas in the form of paintings, sketches, drawings and poems are encouraged.

Locus

You may select a context in the life of a child living in a city, town or a village that you think has a potential for exploring of idea – in courtyard, lane, anganwadi, chowk, field, street, school, maidan, riverside, forest (in rural context); in balcony, street, chowk, school, public park, urban forest, garden or in any other area where you think he/ she can explore and engage with nature. Document and communicate the proposed creative construct of child's engagement with nature. It should be able to convey a unique sense of experience along with a sense of place and the way in which the intervention is able to bring him closer to nature.

You may also select a site of an ongoing design studio or live project which fulfills the theme criteria. The idea matters and unconventional and unique approaches towards the theme will be encouraged.

Note: You may select an age group between 5 –15 years.
